A message from the house announcing the death of ex-speaker Crisp was laid before the senate, which, out of respect to the memory of the deceased, adjourned at the close of the last session. It being private legislation, it was not reported and passed, after consideration in committee of the whole. Two pension bills were also passed. At five o'clock the house took a recess until eight o'clock, the evening session being devoted to consideration of private pension bills, and finally adjourned until the 14th.

Holshausen killed the eagle, but the horse was the worst of it, and was seriously wounded. He has killed a great many snakes along the lake, and they appear to know that he is their enemy. They carry off his young pigs and lambs and peck at the chickens in his barn yard. The eagle measured eight feet from tip to tip, and its talons are of the usual size. The back of the horse shows where it fastened them in its hide, and the mark in the hip is seven or eight inches long. The wound is probably an inch deep where the eagle's beak struck the animal.

THE CYCLIST.

Night bicycle meets are very popular in Philadelphia, which leads the country in cycling affairs.

In Pisa, Italy, two lamps are required for every cycle, and after dark a machine without light may not even be walked through the town.

More than 1,000 bicycles have been stolen in Philadelphia during the past 12 months. It is almost impossible to track the bicycle thief. It is necessary at times for the rider to leave his wheel unguarded, and in one second the thief can mount it and ride away.

Chimes of bells are a fad which is being adopted by Gotham bicyclists. A string of silvery bells is so arranged that the motion of the front wheel keeps them constantly a-ringing, giving the approach of the bicyclist a musical heralding. The going upon the handlebar is to be dispensed with.

The bicycle has brought a new personality into view—the cycling groom in the livery of his employer, pedaling along in proud attendance upon some girl or child. Sometimes he is a colored man, sometimes a trim, snug-faced and clean-shaven servant of the familiar type of English coachman or footman.

When a bicyclist finds his health impaired through cycling, he may be sure he is overdoing it. Training and practice are necessary in order to avoid the strain on the system incurred by riding too far without resting, speeding and hill climbing. Ordinary riding involves no strain whatever.

One of the latest developed foot-tricks in cycling is for the rider to get beside a moving trolley car, holding on to the side, and thus move with the car. The dangers of cycling are doubled by this trick and absolutely nothing is gained except to show that the rider is a fool. The biggest fool of all, however, is the one who rides with his hands in his pockets. But he gets arrested in all well-managed cities, and that tends to discourage him.

ABOUT POSTAGE STAMPS.

From the Seychelles we are advised that provisional 15-cent and 30-cent stamps will be prepared by surcharging the 45-cent stamps. There will be 24,500 15-cent and 12,400 30-cent.

A novel postal service will soon be established between the Farallone Islands and San Francisco. The Farallones lie some 40 miles west of the city, and all outgoing and incoming vessels pass close by. It is proposed to employ carrier pigeons, and maintain hourly service, if necessary, between the islands and the mainland.

FOREIGN CLIPPINGS.

Montevideo's population is 214,342. Dickens' daughter, before she died, had completed a book called "My Father As I Knew Him," which will be published soon.

There are 240,000,000 Catholics in the world, according to a computation made from carefully collected statistics by the Vatican.
